dear secretary@cftc.gov

....as relates to the possible restriction on retail forex trading to require restrictive margin requirements of 10:1 - this initiation will in effect eliminate many individuals who have found success with forex trading and are now providing a living for their families during these difficult economic times.

it seems as though the quality trading platforms available to those interested in forex trading are well equipped with preventitive measures in place that eliminate the possibility of a trader to go into negative numbers.

if a person is well informed and willing to take on the risks involved, shouldn't they be able to do so ?? thank-you
